

BABY CARE

Abandoned babies

MENS, HUSBANDS AND FATHERS

Our Care Home Mom program has been going for many years, with mothers opening their hearts and their houses to care for an abandoned baby.

We believe that the special one on one care will save the life of a child in need.

But connected to that mother is also a father. The husband of the house, and family, and the role he plays is Vitaly important.

Power of the Father has become more and more involved in caring for our babies, protecting them and already giving an example of fatherly love, and bonding.

They are also present with biological parents visits for protection.

Men also influence whether woman and newborns receive care because they often control the finances and household decisions.

A partner focused dimension in the care of our babies are very important, with the man of the house taking ownership of their role as decision makers to take a vulnerable child into their home to be cared for, until they can be placed for adoption.
